told me that, my Glaſs had told me that before; and than He fell to Sobbing, Sigh ——— ing, Wooing, Wooing, Cooing, Whineing, Cringing, Vowing, Swearing, all, all, all, all, all, all, all but dying, Vow--ing, Swear —— ing, all, all, all but dying.
I knew what he meant, I ſaw't in his Eyes, 'twas all but a pack, all, all but a pack of flat'ring lyes; I knew 'twas a ſham, all, all that he ſaid, for Young as I am, young, young as I am, I am too old, too old to

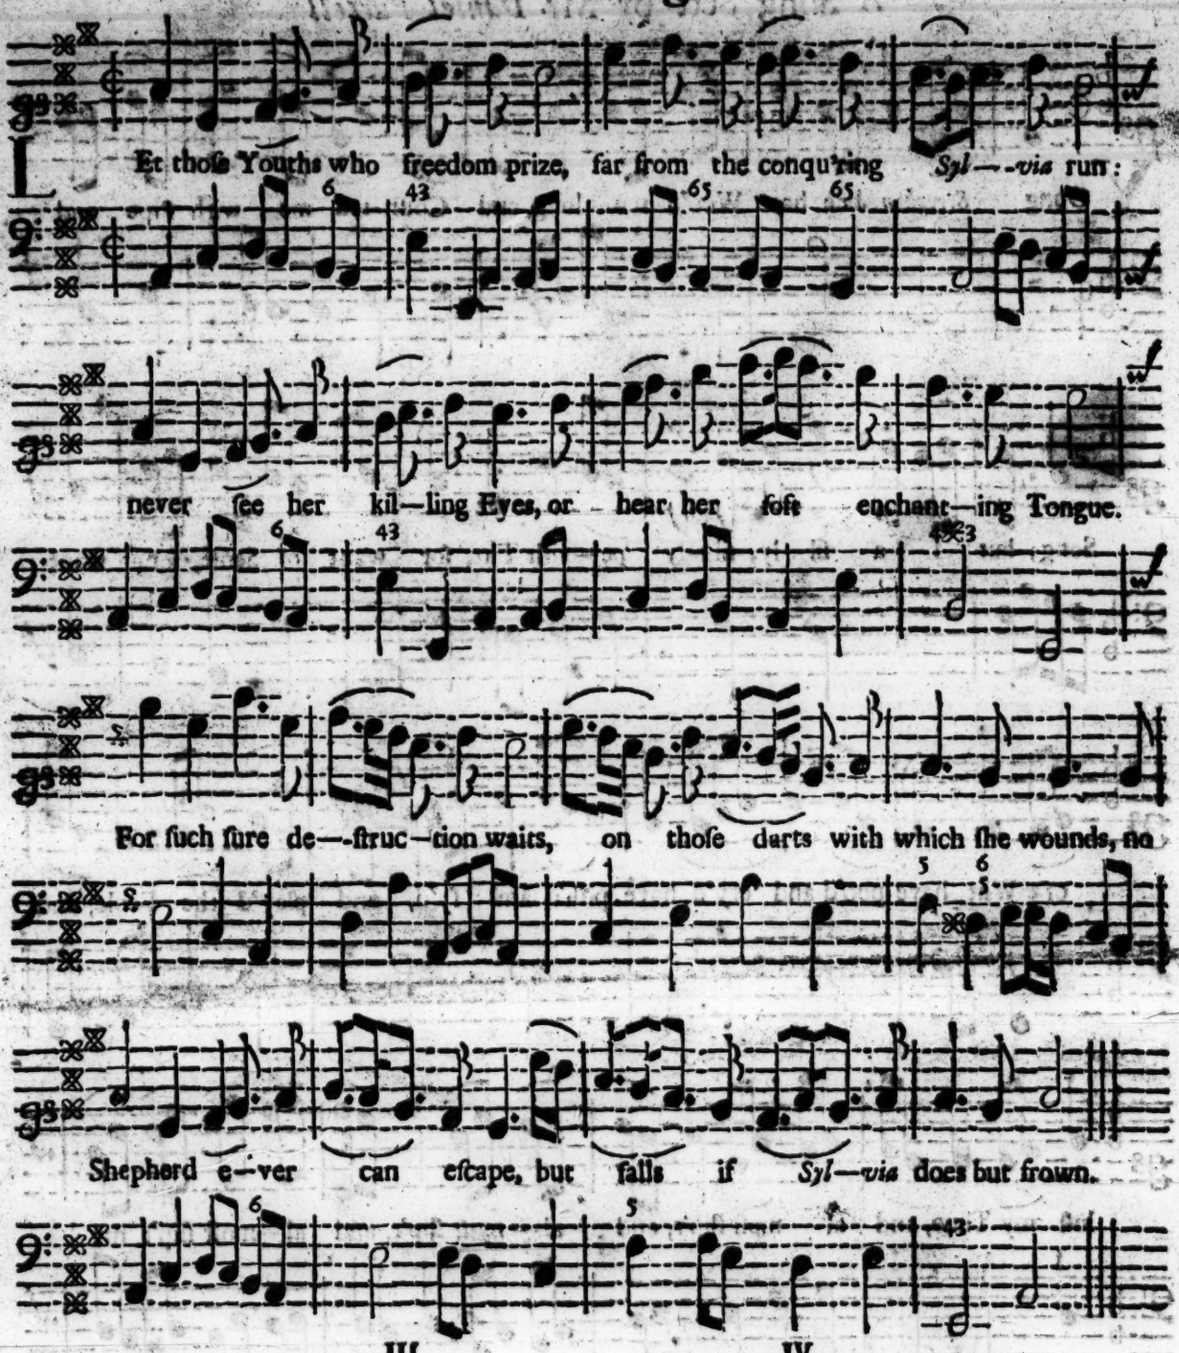
II.

But now I thank my gracious Heav'n,
I hope my faults are all forgiven;
I've ſtruck the Bargain, eas'd my pain,
And am reſolv'd to take my Swain:
To Poo, and cry,
And Piſh, and Fye,
And make a Virgin's coy pretence,
Is all, all, all, is all, all, all, is all, all, all
For want of Senſe.

A New Song.



III.

Damon, to his coſt has prov'd,
All reſiſtance is but vain:
Heav'n has form'd her to be lov'd,
And made her Queen of all the plain.

IV.

Damon, when he ſaw her face,
From her beauty wou'd have fled;
But the Charmer turn'd her voice,
And with a Song ſhe ſtruck him dead.
